

Herbert Spohn (TU München)

Hydrodynamics of the classical Toda lattice

Over the past four years there have been many activities, mostly on the quantum side, to study the dynamics of integrable many-particle systems at non-zero temperatures. On the Eulerian scale, apparently a universal structure becomes valid. The classical Toda chain will serve as an interesting example in illustrating the advances.